

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods for enabling features of printing devices are provided. A representative method includes: receiving information corresponding to an authorization of a user, the information including a designation of at least a first feature of a printing device the user desires to enable; retrieving information adapted to enable at least the first feature of the printing device; and enabling at least the first feature of the printing device using the information retrieved. Systems, computer readable media and other methods also are provided.

PRINTED IN U.S.A. 10010089